A LETTER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS

The hallmarks of The Walt Disney Company have always been innovation and invention. On July 1, that tradition continues with the opening of Innoventions at Epcot '94 in Walt Disney World Resort. It's an everchanging showcase of the amazing technologies and products that could change our lives forever. Innoventions, in short, is a hands-on experience of life in the near future. The technologies featured range from interactive video systems and sophisticated computers to the latest battery-powered automobile—as well as computer-controlled systems that turn an average home into a magic house that thinks for itself. Visitors to Innoventions will even be able to take a test drive on the information superhighway. And, as always, serving as your window on the ever-evolving world of Disney, The Disney Channel will present a sneak peek of Innoventions with the world premiere of The Making of Epcot's Innoventions on Sunday, June 12.

John F. Cooke stands surrounded by artists' renderings of Innoventions, opening July 1 at Epcot '94.

Innoventions isn't the only exciting new addition to Walt Disney World. This summer also brings the opening of The Twilight Zone Tower of Terror™ at the Disney-MGM Studios, a thrill ride based on Rod Serling's classic series The Twilight Zone™. You'll be able to keep abreast of all the latest developments in Florida with Walt Disney World Inside Out, a new fast-paced comedy-magazine series on The Disney Channel that brings you Walt Disney World in a way you've never seen it before. Walt Disney World Inside Out premieres Tuesday, June 7; new episodes will air on the first Tuesday of every month. As your host, standup comedian Scott Herriott brings his own peculiar perspective and quirky sense of humor to the series.

There's more news here at The Disney Channel—a new original miniseries goes into production in June in Ireland. The miniseries is an adaptation of Charles Dickens's classic The Old Curiosity Shop. It's from the same team that created our acclaimed miniseries Great Expectations, which enjoys a special encore on The Disney Channel in June as part of our film tribute to Sir Anthony Hopkins. The Old Curiosity Shop, which stars Peter Ustinov, is something to look forward to in 1995. In the meantime, enjoy Great Expectations—and The Whipping Boy, our latest Disney Channel Premiere Film. It's a perfect summer movie for the whole family.

CURRENT EVENTS

A SPECIAL EDITION SHOWCASES A NEW ATTRACTION

Walt Disney World INNOVENTIONS COMES TO EPCOT '94

On July 1, you can visit the wonderful world of the near future with the opening of a new attraction at Epcot '94 in Walt Disney World Resort: Innoventions. Surrounding Innoventions Plaza (on the former site of Communicore West and East), Innoventions provides guests with an exciting, entertaining, and distinctly hands-on experience of the technologies and products soon to be shaping our daily lives.

Innoventions marks the combination of innovation and invention—two hallmarks in the history of The Walt Disney Company. And on opening day, Innoventions will feature 11 major exhibitors, including AT & T, Apple Computers, General Electric, General Motors, Hammacher-Schlemmer, Honeywell, IBM, Lego Dacta, Masco Corp., Sega, and Videonics. Innoventions also boasts several areas designed by Walt Disney Imagineering that include unusual products from many other companies.

In the center of Innoventions Plaza guests will also discover a truly innovative form of entertainment: a computer-controlled performing fountain that spouts water jets 150-feet-high. It's an amazing demonstration of advanced aquatic technology!

But what will guests discover inside the startling new world of Innoventions?

To begin with, "Bill Nye, the Science Guy"—or at least his electronic self—is on hand to explain and explore the links between science, innovation, and the world we live in. It's a handy way to orient yourself to the world of Innoventions.

Guests certainly won't want to miss the "Magic House Show," presented by General Electric. It's hosted by a new Disney character "The Great Carrotini." With more than a touch of illusion and humor the show introduces new home technologies. Following the show, guests can take a "Magic House Tour," presented by Masco Corp., that showcases the latest designs, materials, appliances and electronics in model kitchens, bedrooms, and Another great exhibit is Eelectronics. Disney Imagineers have assembled a potpourri of new consumer electronics that include gas plasma TV screens, high-end home audio and video equipment, and electronic musical instruments. Innoventions also features a special presentation by LEGO Dacta of computer design software that is available for schools.

Innoventions also boasts the Walt Disney Imagineering Lab.

An artist's rendering of Innoventions Plaza at Epcot '94 entertainment centers. And that's just the beginning of Innoventions.

For the centerpiece of its exhibit, General Motors will display its new experimental "Impact" electric car. AT & T's Gor-Don the Robot hosts a demonstration of cutting-edge, voice-recognition technologies. Apple and IBM showcase the latest in computers.

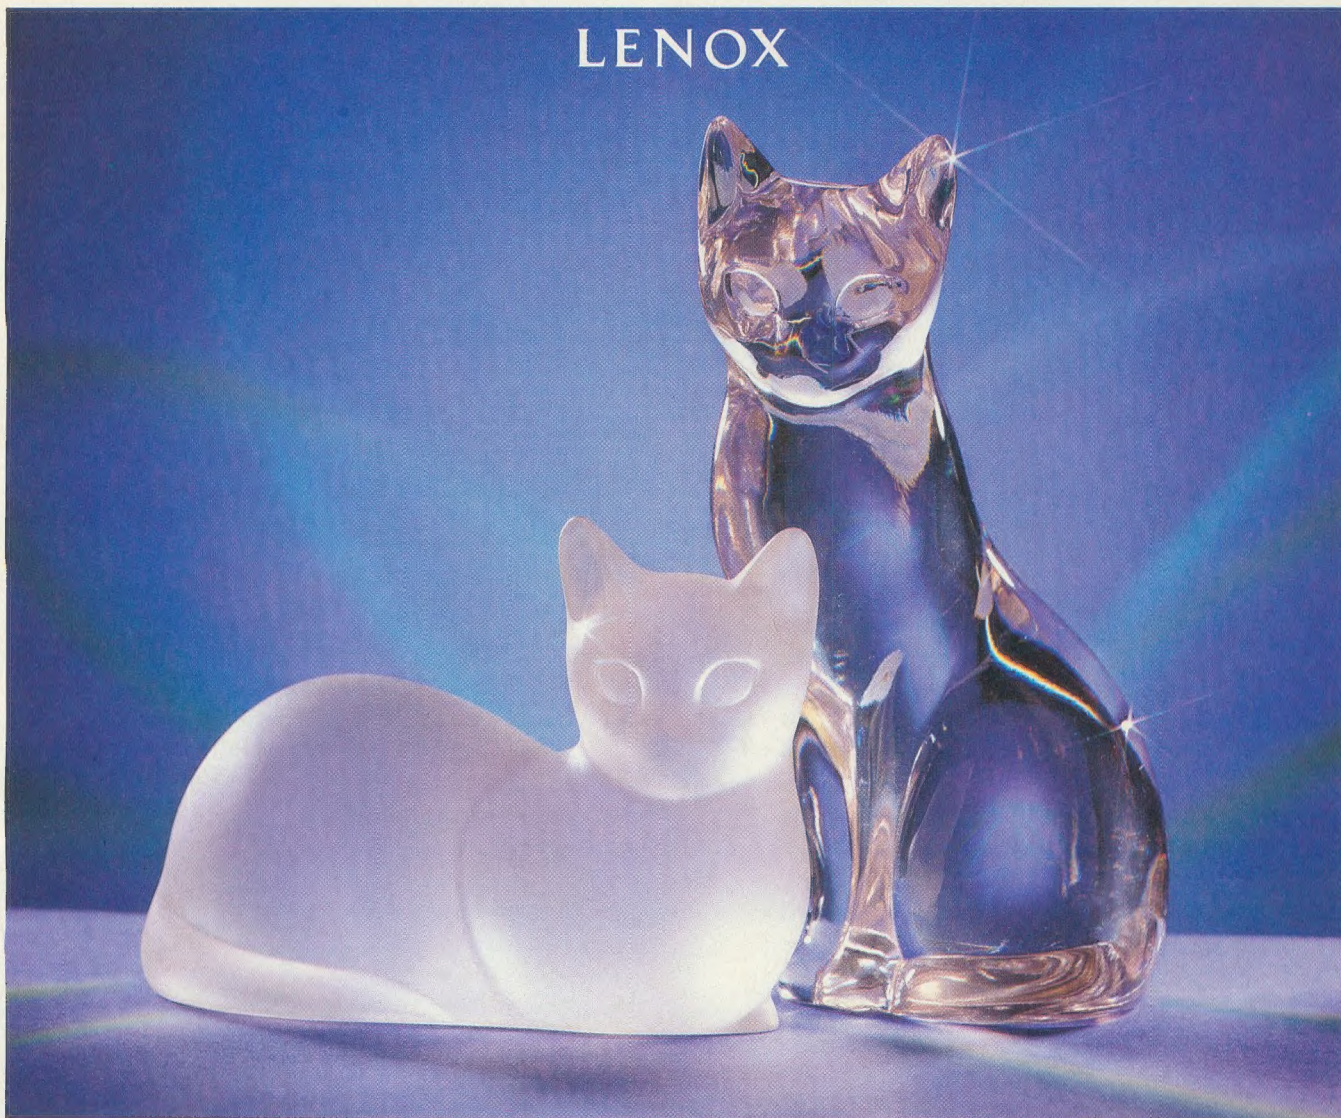

Guests at the SEGA of America exhibit can meet Sonic the Hedgehog—and try out over 100 video games. And Sega's arcade games—ready for guest-testing—include Virtua Racer and the hot new AS-1 flight simulator.

There you can experience the wonders of an upcoming Disney virtual reality ride featuring Aladdin.

And finally, what better showcase for the ambitions and dreams of Innoventions than Discover Magazine's Technology Awards. The products and technologies winning these prestigious awards will be on display at Innoventions, along with video presentations profiling their "Innoventors."

So mark you calendars—on July 1 tomorrow's technology takes up permanent residence at Epcot '94 with the opening of Innoventions.

World Television Premiere FILMING IN A FAR OFF PLACE

© Anthony Bannister

A Far Off Place, the Disney action-adventure film that premieres on the Channel this fall, is a perilous coming-of-age tale set against the harsh splendors of Africa. And perhaps no place is as striking as the Namib Desert, the film's real-life stand-in for the Kalahari Desert of Sir Laurens van der Post's tale. At the film's location site of Sossusvlei, the dunes of the Namib soar to over 300 meters. The Namib is also 80 million years old—it's the oldest desert on Earth.

Of course the Namib is not a typical movie location. Cast and crew dealt with changes of weather ranging from subequatorial heat by day to near-Arctic chill at night. Yet there remained the quality of light reflected by desert vistas—and there was the astounding quiet. As actor Ethan Randall noted, "If there weren't people making a movie, it would be completely quiet. The only noise is the talking and the cars moving."

Production Notes ORIGINAL MOVIES, MINISERIES & SPECIALS

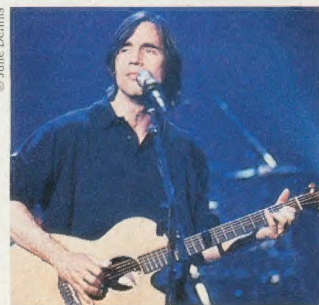

Three original projects enter production in June and July. On June 6, filming of The Old Curiosity Shop begins in Ireland. The adaptation of Dickens's tale comes from the team that created the critically acclaimed miniseries Great Expectations. The Old Curiosity Shop stars Sir Peter Ustinov and Tom Courtenay ...and production begins in July on a new Disney Channel Premiere Film, The Four Diamonds. Based on a true story, The Four Diamonds is the tale of a young boy's battle against cancer...At the Disney-MGM Studios the Mickey Mouse Club begins work on its sixth season in June—and the MMC's popular serial Emerald Cove began production in April on several new episodes.

Sunday Night Showcase JACKSON BROWNE: GOING HOME

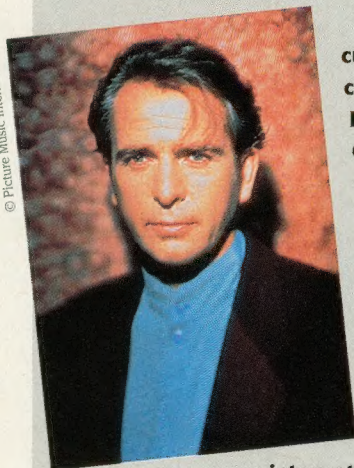

With the arrival of May, Jackson Browne brought his acclaimed national tour to an end—and headed for the studio where he began work on editing his upcoming Disney Channel special, Jackson Browne: Going Home. This latest Going Home special is scheduled to premiere in August.

A New Music Special on Sunday Night Showcase ENTER PETER GABRIEL'S "SECRET WORLD"

© Picture Music International

It's no secret that Peter Gabriel has reinvented rock culture by drawing on world music and combining it with cutting-edge videos and unforgettable live tours. This fall, Disney Channel subscribers get a front-row seat at Peter Gabriel's most recent concert tour with the world television premiere of Peter Gabriel's Secret World, which features hits from his smash album US.

For those unfamiliar with this legendary figure, Peter Gabriel began his musical explorations in the late '60s as a founder of the group Genesis, which featured Phil Collins. In 1975, Gabriel launched his solo career and struck gold with hits like "Shock the Monkey" (1982) and "Sledgehammer" (1986). The hits have continued, as has Gabriel's dedication to human rights, artistic freedom, and international harmony. Of US, Peter Gabriel notes that relationships are the central theme of what he describes as his first real album of love songs.

ARCHIVIST DAVE SMITH ON DISNEY FACTS, FIGURES, HISTORY AND TRIVIA

Readers with questions about Disney trivia can write to Dave Smith, c/o The Walt Disney Archives, Disney Mail Code 1200, 500 South Buena Vista St., Burbank, CA 91521.

Looking Back

DISNEY, DALI—AND DESTINO

An interesting footnote to Disney history is a film that never was—Destino. Back in the mid-1940s, Walt Disney became intrigued by the work of surrealist painter Salvador Dali. Dali agreed to collaborate on a short film for the studio, a film based on a Mexican ballad song. Arriving at the Disney Studio, Dali was given an office with artists John Hench and Bob Cormack delegated to help him. Hench and Cormack matched Dali's style as the trio turned out a long series of story sketches featuring Dali-esque drawings of ballerinas, baseball players, bicycles, and bugs. But after several months of work Destino was shelved. Walt felt it could not stand alone as an animated short; moreover he was moving away from omnibus animated films such as Melody Time, of which Destino could have been a part. Today we can only speculate on the result of a Disney-Dali collaboration.

Disney Facts OUR READERS WANT TO KNOW

Who wrote the new song that has just been added to the Carousel of Progress at Walt Disney World?

—K.M., Oklahoma City, OK

That song is "There's a Great Big Beautiful Tomorrow" by Richard and Robert Sherman—and it's not new at all. It was originally written for the attraction when it opened at the 1964 New York World's Fair, and it continued as its theme song after it moved to Disneyland. However, when the Carousel moved to Walt Disney World in 1975, GE, which sponsored the show, had changed its corporate philosophy. A new song, "The Best Time of Your Life," was commissioned. The return to the earlier anthem in November, 1993, marked a historic moment for those who recalled the original show.

Has Omri Katz, who is so good in Eerie, Indiana, made any Disney movies?

—F.K., Atlanta, GA

Teenager Omri Katz played Max Dennison in last summer's Disney release Hocus Pocus, which starred Bette Midler. Hocus Pocus is a world television premiere on The Disney Channel this September.

How many cels does it take to make an animated cartoon?

—B.W., San Diego, CA

There are 24 frames per second in an animated film, but most cels (painted celluloids) containing characters are often held for two frames. If there are several characters in a scene, each may be painted on a different cel. These cels are placed over a watercolor background for photographing. A typical animated short runs six to eight minutes in length. That equals 4,500 to 12,000—or more—cels per cartoon.

Hocus Pocus premieres in September on The Disney Channel.

Road Trips COOL ADVENTURE: EXPLORING AMERICA'S CAVES

Something there is in us that loves a cave. What fascinates? The dark? The mystery? Beyond mere geology, there lies a true sense of adventure and intrigue.

Yet caves are easily accessible to nearly everyone through any of the 80 guided tours available across the country. And touring a cavern makes for an exciting road-trip destination or side excursion. All you need is a jacket, passages and chambers intertwine. Carlsbad Caverns in southeastern New Mexico boasts some of the world's largest and most spectacular stalactites and stalagmites: colorful, crystallized mineral deposits.

Cave visitors may view cathedral-high rooms, towering rock formations, delicate crystals, winding passageways, waterfalls, ponds, and streams—even wildlife such as bats, birds, and blind fish. Because most guided tours are conducted along well-lit walkways with handrails—some caverns even come equipped with elevators—

National Monument in Northern California has more than 200 lava caves with several available for a self-guided experience.

Morrow urges families to remember that underground environments maintain a nearly constant temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit. And because caverns are typically high in humidity, they are typically chilly. Summer vacationers who packed shorts and tank tops need to plan to dress for a cave climate.

Most tour guides discuss the unique geological history of the cave you're visiting, talk about its discovery, and explain how comfortable shoes, and a few hours.

For David Foster, the executive director of the American Cave Conservation Association, Inc., it's the thrill of the unknown that makes caves so alluring. "Caves are incredibly interesting and beautiful places," Foster says. "You never know what you'll find around the next bend."

Caves vary widely; many are so unusual that they have no equal anywhere else on the planet. At Pennsylvania's Penn's Cave, visitors take a half-mile boat tour through tunnels, a tour which ends at an imposing lake. At Mammoth Cave National Park in Kentucky, 346 miles of children of any age can enjoy the activity.

While some tours are along level pathways, other tours do involve stairs or ramps. Foster suggests that families start with a short tour, just to make sure younger children aren't frightened by the dark. Then opt for longer tours after everyone knows if they enjoy cave exploration.

For those eager to graduate from guided tours to basic, simple spelunking, 40 caverns offer rental knee pads and lighted helmets so you can tackle more demanding caves. For example, Duncan Morrow, spokesperson for the National Park Service in Washington, D.C., points out that Lava Beds the area was mapped and explored. National Park caves usually feature museum-like exhibits; some provide food service and gift shops.

To Foster and other cavern lovers, caves are America's last frontier. "There aren't a lot of places on earth where people can explore the unknown without incredible amounts of money or expertise," Foster says. At the very least, your kids will love it.

This musical collector's plate is a delightful trip over the rainbow... a Bradford Exchange recommendation

A turn of the key fills your room with the unforgettable music of "Over the Rainbow"

With the simple turn of a key, this brilliantly colored collector's plate plays a delightful adaptation of *The Wizard of Oz*TM signature melody "Over the Rainbow," while it evokes wonderful memories of that magical movie.

Now the cheerful, happy feeling of this national treasure has been captured by artist Kimmerle Milnazik and re-created on a fine porcelain limited-edition collector's plate. And like exceptional collector's plates that command hundreds of dollars on the plate market, "Over the Rainbow" appears to have what it takes to go up in value once the edition closes.

Some exceptional plates appreciate in value; some plates go down, and many remain at or near issue price. But the edition of "Over the Rainbow" is strictly limited to a maximum of 95 firing days, and demand is expected to be strong. So if you wish to obtain this plate at the $29.90 issue price, act now. To order your plate—fully backed by our unconditional 365-day guarantee—send no money now, simply complete and mail the coupon.

Or that female bison are considered more intelligent and courageous than males? Here's something to stimulate childrens' natural interest in America's shaggy beast. Return of the Buffalo, by Jack Denton Scott (G.P. Putnam's Sons, $8.95), follows a buffalo herd through the seasons, illustrating their habits and surroundings with photographs and fascinating facts.

KidsCooking: BUFFALO BURGERS

There's something about a buffalo barbecue that intrigues, and kids—often even more than adults—are drawn to the idea. So says Ken Childs, past president of the American Buffalo Association and manager of the Star B Ranch in Ramona, California.

While buffalo are best known by their long history as an important resource for Native Americans, they have recently become popular as a low-fat alternative to beef. Now available in supermarkets nationwide, and by mail order, over 600,000 pounds of buffalo meat are sold annually, says Childs.

Buffalo meat contains only about 10% fat, as compared to most burger meat, which has a fat content ranging from 15 to 22%. Buffalo has 25-30% fewer calories than beef and 50% less cholesterol than chicken and fish. And bison are raised naturally on a diet of grasses and grains, without growth hormones or preventive antibiotics.

To grill buffalo burgers, let the coals die down a bit until they're covered with a fine gray ash. If broiling them, move the rack farther away from the

SWIM AND FIN ACCESSORIES

Life near the water has never been so fun or so colorful. Kids can now get neon river boots, water-friendly footwear that's perfect for tide-pooling, snorkeling or pool play (Lands' End, $14.50). There are bright, waterproof sandals with rubber soles and elastic straps (Lands' End, $10), and a beach duffle with hidden compartments perfect for keys and change (Lands' End, $20). For the little beginner, try an early adventure starter kit (Troll Learn & Play, $9.95), which includes adjustable flippers, arm-floaters, snorkel, mask and swim goggles.

Good For You: WHEN BUGS BITE

Summer may mean freedom and fun, but it's also the time of year when bugs bite.

Dealing with insect bites can be distressing—especially for young children. And parents often wonder what the experts recommend for treatment.

The best bet when it comes to bug bites? "Mount an aggressive prevention campaign," says Don Schiff, M.D., pediatrician and professor of pediatrics at the University of Colorado Health Science Center. Schiff says repellents are perfectly acceptable for use on kids, except for infants and children who have shown an allergic reaction to them. Parents can compare the diethyltoluamide (DEET) concentration in repellents, and opt for a stronger or weaker product, based on personal experience, the intensity of need for insect control, and personal preference. Some experts do suggest that parents avoid MOON WALK-25!

Remember watching the Apollo 11 astronauts take mankind's first steps on the moon? That was 25 years ago: July 20, 1969. To give children a good introduction to moon facts and lore, check out astronomer E.C. Krupp's book The Moon and You (Macmillan Publishing Company, 1993, $13.95). It includes up-to-date information on gravity, tides, the moon's phases, and moon mythology.

using repellents with greater than 10 percent DEET on their children.

The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that parents avoid allowing their children near areas where insects nest or congregate, areas such as garbage cans, stagnant pools of water, uncovered foods and sweets, orchards, and gardens when flowers are in bloom. If possible, dress children in long pants and a lightweight long-sleeved shirt to provide protection. Avoid scented soaps, perfumes, or hair sprays. Keep arms, feet, and legs covered when hiking.

If a bug bites or stings, Schiff offers practical advice for treating the initial discomfort: apply ice to the area as soon as possible. Ice slows the absorption of the insect's toxin and reduces itching and swelling. Over-the-counter oral benadryl, an antihistamine, can be given to a child to further reduce itching and swelling.

If a stinger is present, Schiff recommends parents remove it gently with tweezers, if they can. Bites should be washed with soap and water to reduce the risk of infection, and if desired, calamine lotion can be applied to the area to minimize symptoms.

In addition to the localized post-bite soreness, itchiness tends to be a major complaint of children. Schiff suggests parents check to be sure the child's fingernails are clean and cut short to prevent infection if scratching occurs.

Bug bites are best left open to the air, Schiff says, unless a bandage is needed to prevent the child from rubbing or scratching the area. If the wound becomes firm and swelling or pain increases, he suggests parents see a health provider, since antibiotics may be necessary.

Many parents are especially afraid of ticks, due to the well-publicized incidence of Lyme disease. But Schiff argues that the risks are over-emphasized. If parents check their children carefully for tick attachment—and wash off any ticks or remove them with tweezers within 24 hours—the disease will not occur, he says.

Some people are allergic to specific insects. If a child or an adult develops sudden difficulty in breathing, weakness, hives, itching all over the body, or extreme swelling near the eyes, lips, or elsewhere, seek immediate medical attention.

Schiff says that most bug bites, while irritating initially, are easily soothed, if not by ice and compresses, then by a big popsicle and the promise of something fun to do.

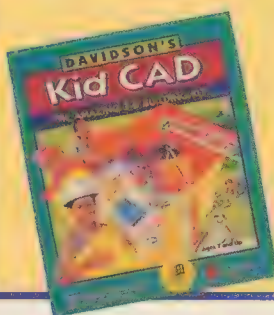

SMOKEY TURNS 50

This summer, Smokey celebrates a half century of service. Efforts at fire prevention were stimulated during World War II by the fear that enemies could attack valuable forest resources. The USDA Forest Service organized the Cooperative Forest Fire Prevention Program in 1942 and two years later designed a poster featuring Walt Disney's Bambi. But later that year, a bear was introduced as a more forceful campaign symbol. Fifty years later, Smokey is alive and well—and "Remember...Only You Can Prevent Forest Fires!"

BUILDING BOOM

Construction toys, a favorite ever since the first metal erector set emerged 80 years ago, are seeing a building boom of their own now. Sales of this category of toys grew an estimated 15% last year, 10% more than toys overall.

The reason? Some say parents now recognize the importance of building toys as researchers have touted the educational value of manipulative toys. Of course today's sophisticated Erector sets boast battery-powered motors and space-age styling. There's even kids' computer software—Davidson's Kid CAD helps children design detailed 3-D houses. However the tried-and-true favorites from parents' younger days, such as Playskool's Lincoln Logs and Tinkertoys, are still hot properties with contemporary kids.

After a tumultuous career on screen,
stage, and television
Anthony Hopkins stands at the pinnacle of his profession

By Amy Boothe Greene

A Peculiar Loneliness

© Ron Leyman/OUTLINE

GROWING UP IN WALES, a world away from Hollywood, he made regular pilgrimages to the cinema. In the darkened theatre he sat transfixed by Humphrey Bogart, Edward G. Robinson, James Cagney. Later he discovered the brooding Marlon Brando and Rod Steiger.

The only child of a baker and his wife, Anthony Philip Hopkins never got on. A poor student, he remembers feeling "hopeless, pathetic," like "an idiot." His mother labeled him a loner; his father called him eccentric. "I just felt very isolated," Hopkins recalls today.

At 15, Hopkins encountered local hero

Richard Burton and cadged an autograph. The actor was kind, and Hopkins thought, "I'd love to get out of this place, out of my own peculiar loneliness. I've got to become something."

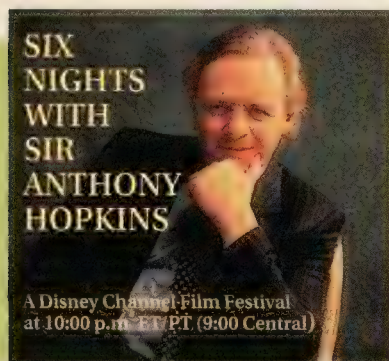

Today, the 56-year-old star of stage, screen, and television has indeed become something of a marvel. Acting for more than a quarter of a century, Hopkins has become internationally renowned for masterful performances in roles ranging from a psychotic genius to a heartbroken and weary stoic.

Since 1991, when he won his Oscar for Hannibal Lecter in The Silence of the Lambs, Hopkins has been on a glorious run. The triumph of Howard's End was followed by two of the richest roles of his career: as author C.S. Lewis in Shadowlands and as the butler Stevens in The Remains of the Day.

Heady achievement for a man who discovered acting as a 17-year-old steel worker. That discovery led to a scholarship at London's Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. After graduating as a silver medalist, Hopkins made his London debut in 1964, playing in Julius Caesar.

By 1968—the year he made his film debut in The Lion in Winter—Anthony

THE EFFICIENCY EXPERT
World Television Premiere
Saturday, June 25

Hopkins was Britain's rising star. Yet he soon found himself in a professional and personal wilderness.

"For a long time I suffered from depression and alcoholism, and I knew I was slowly dying," he says. "I was very difficult to work with and all my friends would ask, 'Why are you doing this to yourself?' I didn't know the answer."

Yet Hopkins persevered, moving to America, throwing himself into acting, and renouncing alcohol in 1975. His face soon gained familiarity with British and American television audiences alike as he appeared in made-for-television movies and miniseries ranging from All Creatures Great and Small to The Mayflower, Q.B. VII, and The Hunchback of Notre Dame. In 1989 Hopkins played Abel Magwitch in The Disney Channel original miniseries Great Expectations.

Like Sir Laurence Olivier, to whom he is often compared, Anthony Hopkins's film career has proved mixed. Yet experience polished and deepened his art. Beginning with such films as The Elephant Man and 84 Charing Cross Road, Hopkins moved to the acme of the acting profession. Today, he is described as Olivier's heir.

Of course there are honors other than Oscar: Last year Queen Elizabeth II made him Sir Anthony. "My wife told me I'd gotten a letter offering a knighthood. I said, 'Oh God, what for?' When good things happen, you think, 'God, has that really happened?'"

Today Anthony Hopkins feels relaxed about life. "I've reached a point in my life where there's nothing to win, nothing to lose—and nothing to prove."

About the author: Amy Boothe Greene is currently at work on a book about William Randolph Hearst in Hollywood.

THIS TALE OF A SPOILED PRINCE AND A YOUNG PAUPER
FOLLOWS IN THE CLASSIC TRADITION OF DISNEY FILMMAKING

The Whipping Boy

The Whipping Boy is a lighthearted romp in the grand manner, with a cast of assorted rascals and rascallions—even a gypsy lady with a dancing bear. From left: Truan Munro is Jemmy the whipping boy; Nic Knight is the spoiled prince; Karen Salt is Jemmy's sister; Blind George (George C. Scott) entertains the film's two villains; Mathilda May is the kindly gypsy; and Vincent Schiavelli and Kevin Conway are Cutwater and Hold Your Nose Billy, the film's villainous—if incompetent—highwaymen.

TAKE AN ARROGANT, DEMANDING, AND REBELLIOUS YOUNG PRINCE, add a streetwise urchin who catches rats for a living, season with a trio of the scruffiest rascallions to grace the screen since Robert Newton played Long John Silver in Disney's Treasure Island, and you have the ingredients for The Whipping Boy. Set in the mid-18th century, this Disney Channel Premiere Film is a spicy and adventure-filled soufflé that boasts colorful costumes and exotic locales, with the medieval streets of France, the dark woods of Germany, and even an authentic and gloomy German schloss creating the storybook realm of Brattenburg.

Based on Sid Fleischman's 1986 novella for young readers, which won the distinguished Newbery Award for its outstanding contribution to children's literature, The Whipping Boy is the tale of two young boys from opposite ends of the social spectrum. Prince Horace, played by Nic Knight, is the spoiled and arrogant heir to the throne whose pranks are designed to catch the attention of his father, the Careworn King of Brattenburg. Young Jemmy, played by Truan Marrow, is a desperate if pitiable orphan who supports his sister Annitrose by catching rats in the city sewers—catching rats and selling them to a dirty and dank cellar called Blind George's Sporting Club.

The action and adventure take wing when Horace has Jemmy seized. His purpose: Jemmy is to be the new palace whipping boy, the boy who must take the place of the prince when punishment is administered. But some pranks deserve a punishment that not even a whipping boy can take. When Prince Horace crosses the line with his behaviour—and brings Brattenburg to the edge of war with its neighbor—the two flee the palace for a remarkable series of adventures with a cast of colorful characters ranging from highwaymen to even a gypsy woman and her dancing bear.

Gracing The Whipping Boy are three supporting performances by accomplished actors. First of course is George C. Scott, who plays Blind George. In his tavern-cum-sporting club, the one-eyed rogue offers a fast-fascinating performance. Blind George also faces stolen property, which brings him into contact with the film's two arch-villains, played with great panache by Vincent Schiavelli and Kevin Conway.

They are thieves, highwaymen, plain and simple, though they describe themselves as "those paladins of the open road"—Hold Your Nose Billy and Mr. Cutwater. Kevin Conway is Hold Your Nose Billy, a scurvy party with a menacing leer and a breath strong enough to bring grown men to their knees. Vincent Schiavelli brings a fine and fateful gleam to the almost-elegant Cutwater—almost elegant, that is, in comparison to his comrade in roguery. Together the two provide The Whipping Boy with its fine air of malice.

Gypsies, soldiers, highwaymen—The Whipping Boy is a lighthearted romp in the grand manner. It's a tall tale of long odds overcome, of daring rescues, of justice being done, and of a young prince reformed and returned to his father. It's a tale, in short, to charm the whole family, another entry in the classic tradition of Disney adventure.

Experience Walt Disney World

Join comedian Scott Herriott for a new monthly series that takes a witty, wacky, and offbeat look at life in Walt Disney World

inside out

Trusting visitors to the Magic Kingdom brave the thrilling curves of Big Thunder Mountain—with paper cups of water clenched between their teeth. A tour of an abandoned and haunted hotel ends in a spectacular fourteen story free-fall at the Disney-MGM Studios. And at Epcot's Living Seas, a bevy of beautiful and graceful dolphins are literally learning to talk back to humans.

Welcome to Walt Disney World Inside Out, a witty, wacky, offbeat, and lively new monthly series on The Disney Channel. Walt Disney World Inside Out premieres on Tuesday, June 7, at 8:30 p.m. Eastern/Pacific Time (7:30 p.m. Central). New episodes of the series debut on the Channel on the first Tuesday of every month.

"Walt Disney World Inside Out is a fast-paced comedy magazine show with Walt Disney World as our backdrop," says executive producer Stu Schreiber. "In the course of any given episode, we're using comedy sketches, hidden camera sequences, and behind-the-scenes segments to expose viewers to all of the wonders here at Walt Disney World. You can say it's Walt Disney World like you've never seen it before."

"You know," Schreiber continues, "people who've visited before think they know all there is to know about Walt Disney World. But with this show we'll take viewers to places they never knew existed. We've also decided to make our taping of the show highly visible throughout the parks so that visitors could join us and take part in the show. That's why we decided that the host of our show would travel around Walt Disney World with his own highly visible set."

Hosting Walt Disney World Inside Out is stand-up comedian Scott Herriott, whose ever-present sidekick is his set—a red couch, garnished with garish yellow Mickey heads, that might give naugahyde a bad name. "It looks like it would be right at home in Elvis's TV room at Graceland," cracks Herriott, who also describes Walt Disney World as a "place two and a half times the size of Manhattan but with better parking."

"Actually," Herriott notes in a slightly more serious tone, "doing the show in Walt Disney World has been pretty exciting." And it does have its arduous side, he is quick to acknowledge. For one segment in the show's first episode, Herriott visited the Living Seas—and ended up in a diving bubble.

"What people might not realize," says Herriott, "is that that diving bell is 35 feet under water. I'd never gone scuba diving—but the night before we shot that segment I got a crash course. I put on my mask and fins and tank and swam down to that bell."

Hidden cameras, behind-the-scenes tours, even special guests like Hulk Hogan and Nancy Kerrigan—you never know what might happen next on Walt Disney World Inside Out. Or as Scott Herriott says, "I've been preparing for this job for years!"

World Premiere • WALT DISNEY WORLD INSIDE OUT • Tuesday, June 7, at 8:30 p.m. ET/PT (7:30 p.m. Central)
New episodes premiere the first Tuesday of each month at 8:30 p.m. See page 39 for complete playdates.

ELIJAH WOOD BRINGS HUCK FINN TO LIFE

WHEN IT CAME TIME TO CAST THE LEADING ROLE IN THE ADVENTURES OF HUCK FINN, THE FILMMAKERS NEEDED A YOUNG ACTOR WHO COULD CONVINCINGLY PORTRAY A FREEWHEELING, FREE-THINKING, DISOBEDIENT LAD WHO ULTIMATELY DISPLAYS A NOBLE CONSCIENCE. THE CHOICE WAS IMMEDIATELY CLEAR: ELIJAH WOOD, THEN 11 YEARS OLD. "HE IS HUCK," SAID DIRECTOR-SCREENWRITER STEPHEN SOMMERS. IF ELIJAH WOOD LOOKS FAMILIAR—AND YOU HAVEN'T SEEN THE ADVENTURES OF HUCK FINN—WOOD CO-STARRED WITH MACAULAY CAULKIN IN THE THRILLER "THE GOOD SON." PLAYING HUCK FINN PROVED AN INTERESTING EXPERIENCE FOR WOOD. HUCK'S STORY IS THAT OF A YOUNG MAN WHO MUST MAKE A MORAL CHOICE BETWEEN THE TEACHINGS OF HIS SOCIETY AND HIS FRIENDSHIP FOR THE SLAVE JIM. "I DIDN'T KNOW A LOT ABOUT HUCK BEFORE I DID THIS FILM," WOOD SAYS. "BUT THEN I READ 'THE ADVENTURES OF HUCKLEBERRY FINN' AND 'TOM SAWYER.' I LEARNED THAT WE HAVE TO LET OUR HEART TELL US WHAT TO DO. EVEN THOUGH WE'VE BEEN TAUGHT THAT SOMETHING IS RIGHT—LIKE HUCK WAS TAUGHT THAT SLAVERY WAS RIGHT—THINGS ARE NOT NECESSARILY TRUE JUST BECAUSE PEOPLE BELIEVE THEY ARE."

TWO MILLION PEOPLE HAVE PUT THEIR TRUST IN IT. ALONG WITH A ZILLION OTHER THINGS.

Dodge Caravan is the minivan that invented minivans. And Americans continue to make it their favorite, for zillions of good reasons.

Grand Caravan can carry an entire kids' basketball team (coaches included), a week's worth of groceries and myriad other things with ease. It carries something else, too: the distinction of being a leader.

Today, Caravan moves ahead with such notable innovations as a standard airbag for both the driver and front passenger¹—and available integrated child safety seats which now recline for added comfort. In the doors, high-strength steel guard beams help provide dynamic side-impact protection as part of a total energy management system. And on Caravan's sliding side door, a child protection lock is standard. The fact is, its safety engineering is so ahead of its time, today's

Caravan actually exceeds 1998 car safety requirements.²

Within that protective environment, you'll find up to 141 cubic feet of usable space, depending on the model you choose. As you'd expect, Caravan's interior can be arranged in a number of different configurations. And in just a jiffy, too. (After all, Saturday mornings were invented for running errands, not playing musical minivan chairs.) You'll find this versatile, convenient, comfortable interior is bounding with available innovations. Like a rear bench that slides forward to create extra cargo room, a Converta-Bed, Quad Command bucket seats and more.

Caravan's exterior really shines, too. Most major body panels are made from two-sided galvanized steel. All metal surfaces are subject to a nine-step pretreatment process. Then, in a full immersion procedure, the entire body is electroplated with corrosion-resistant epoxy. That's followed by an elastic anti-chip coat on the exterior sills, a two-stage base color coat and not one—but two—separate clearcoat applications on the lower body. The result is a finish that's virtually impervious to the elements.

Once you've concluded that Caravan is the minivan to get, you'll be faced with a pleasurable task. That of deciding which Caravan is the Caravan to get. You have a choice of two lengths. Caravan, or longer Grand Caravan. There are also Sport, All-Wheel Drive, SE, LE and ES models. Each one drives like a car, which is something of a Caravan hallmark.

Whatever model Caravan you choose, it'll be backed by the Owner's Choice

Protection Plan featuring 7-year/70,000 mile powertrain protection or 3-year/36,000 mile bumper-to-bumper coverage.³

Now that you know you can put your trust in Caravan, we think it's time you put yourself in one. So how about a test drive?

See Jane. See Jane read.
Hey, wait a minute. Jane doesn't read yet.

Actually, Jane's Comes to Life™ book is reading to her. All she has to do is put the StoryPlayer on the disc (which is found on each page) to hear a story come to life with her favorite character voices. With that kind of encouragement, it won't be long before she really can read. Until then, we have a library of over fifteen books that just might get your Jane (or Dick) started on a lifetime love of reading.
